JESUS IS MERCIFUL

Today's Gospel gives us an example of Jesus's merciful response. The scene begins with a bunch of men ready to stone the women. She knows how the law of Moses treats her crime. It says, "You shall bring them both out to the gate of the city and there stone them to death" (Deut 22:24). Thus, she expects no reprieve. She figures all is lost. She assumes her sin is unforgiveable. Yet these men move and ask Jesus a question before the stone her. They want to trick Jesus. They know Jesus is merciful but they also know Moses's law is above all else among the Jews. They ask him, "Now in the law, Moses commanded us to stone such women. So what do you say?" Jesus bent down and started writing on the ground. If we imagine ourselves in the place of the woman, we are probably nervous at this point, wondering when the first stone is coming. We hide our face, too afraid to even look. But, Jesus writes calmly on the ground, then tells them they can cast stones. However, he gives a caveat: they must be without sin. Surely, we think as the woman there, we compare ourselves to the men with the stones. Compared with us, these men are sinless. It will be seconds before the stones start piling on. But the rocks never come. You're in shock, and wondering what has happened. Then, after sitting crouched in the corner[1] for a while, you look up. There is Jesus, who offers you a hand up. He then says, "Has no one condemned you? . . . Neither do I condemn you. Go, and from now on do not sin anymore." This experience is much like the experience we have when we fall and go to confession. We've done something we know is wrong and our conscience eats away, condemning us. Then, we fear confession. We think, "Oh, no, how could I ever say that to the priest?" Trust me, even we priests have this experience: for us it's going to our fellow priests who are often our friends or former classmates. But then, when we go to confession, we experience the overflow of God's abundant mercy washing over our souls. God's mercy is so strong that some early Christians actually skipped this passage in their Bible as they were scandalized by it. They didn't think God's mercy could be so abundant. But we know it can be. In fact, when we look to the other passages the Church gives us this week, we can see them as celebrations of this abundant forgiveness we receive in confession. The woman caught in adultery is a lot like us when we sin. We think all is lost, we think Jesus will be mad, but, if we go to confession, we freely receive God's healing balm. We are cleansed by his wonderful mercy.

I want to invite you all to go to confession more often, even in these two weeks before Easter if you haven't been for a while.

God bless you!
