The liturgies for these Sundays are all oriented to helping us reflect on the gift and grace of baptism.

Season of Lent is really all about: preparing to renew our baptismal vows at Easter. On the Fourth Sunday of Lent — Laetare* Sunday — with its rose-colored vestments and joyful tones, we hear the story of the "man born blind" from the Gospel of John (9:1-41). In this story about being enlightened, Jesus gives the gift of sight to a man who was blind from birth, empowering and enabling him to see, for the first time, his parents, the people of his community, the wonders of creation, and, most especially, the face of the Savior who was standing right before him

In John's account of this event, the evangelist sets up an interesting parallel in this story. On the one hand, we have the blind man who, without any action on his part, is healed by Jesus. On the other, we have the crowd, including the righteous, believing observers who, it turns out, can't see the wonder and the truth of the one who stands before them. The physical blindness of the man-born-blind is not the real disability in this story. Instead, it is the emotional, intellectual, and spiritual blindness of those who condemn Jesus and refuse to open their minds and hearts to the truth of his message.

As we reflect on this story, we are invited to consider Jesus' words at the end of the passage. Responding to the Pharisees who ask, "Surely we are not also blind, are we?" Jesus replies, "If you were blind, you would have no sin; but now you are saying, 'We see,' so your sin remains."

The rose colors of this Sunday remind us that we are now more than halfway through the Season of Lent. As we continue our Lenten journey, we would do well to pause reflect on how our Lenten penances and good works are helping us have a right perspective and to prepare to renew our baptismal promises at Easter.
