HOMILY
3RD SUNDAY OF LENT

Today's passage highlights Jesus' deep concern for the sanctity of the temple and the purity of worship. It reveals not only something that Jesus did long ago but also reveals something that He desires to do today.

During His time, dramatically and forcefully, Jesus drove out those who had turned the house of God into a marketplace.

This action is symbolic of Jesus' mission to cleanse not just the physical temple but also our hearts, the spiritual dwelling place of God's people.

When we reflect on Jesus cleansing the physical temples we have today, we should be cognizant of the fact that there have been many evil ambitions by many people throughout history up to now who have tried to destroy His Church.

Everyone has most likely encountered some sort of hurt from those within the Church itself, from society, and even from family.

Jesus does not promise perfection from those we encounter every day, but He does promise to vigorously go after evil and root it out.

As for the second and most important point, we should see this passage as a lesson for our souls. Each soul is a temple that should be set aside solely for the glory of God and the fulfillment of His holy will.

Therefore, this passage is fulfilled today if we allow our Lord to enter and see the evil and filth within our own souls.

This may not be easy to do and will require true humility and surrender, but the end result will be cleansing and purification by our Lord.

Do not be afraid to let Jesus' holy wrath work its power. Pray for purification in our Churches and also in our hearts and let Jesus with his authority accomplish His mission.

The Jews ask for a sign to prove his authority, and Jesus responds enigmatically, saying, "Destroy this temple, and I will raise it again in three days."

They misunderstand him, thinking he refers to the physical temple, but Jesus is speaking of his own body and the resurrection that will follow his death.

The narrative serves as a powerful metaphor for the transformative work that Jesus came to accomplish.

His death and resurrection would replace the old system of religious rituals with a new way of approaching God through faith in Christ. The temple, once a physical structure, would be replaced by the living temple of Jesus' body.

Reflect, today, upon the fact that Jesus desires to bring about purification in many ways. He desires to purify the Church as a whole, each society and community, your own family, and especially your own soul.

As we reflect on today's Gospel passage, we are called to examine our own hearts and lives. Are there areas where we have allowed impurities to creep in, distracting us from true worship and devotion to God?

Jesus' zeal for the Father's house challenges us to maintain the purity and sincerity of our relationship with God, not allowing external distractions to hinder our woship.

Ultimately, this Gospel passage calls us to embrace the transformative power of Christ, recognizing that through his death and resurrection, he offers us a new and living way to approach God.
